REPORT ON PORTLAND SHOW:

The Portland show, held Sept. 26th, was sold out at 90 tables. It was well organized with a good crowd of buyers during first three hours. Free coffee was provided to sellers and a food wagon took care of my need for continual sustenance. As is becoming the rule; most of the items for sale were newer user type. There were a few nice older items but the price was up and most went early. (I spent two dollars all day..now I know I'm a bit tight but even I wanted to find an older treasure or two on which to spend some money.) The sellers I talked to seemed rappy with their sales.

The Portland people are talking about moving the show to the Oregon Convention Center in downtown Portland and having a two day show in a year or so. It will be interesting to see how this type of show does..if they do it. I wish them much luck. We may become the SECOND biggest show in the Northwest.

JOHN RAU IS IN NEED:
